Lecture 4: The heart

The heart is a muscular organ that pumps blood through the body.

The left ventricle is the chamber that pumps oxygenated blood into the aorta.

Valves are flaps of tissue that stop blood from flowing backwards.

Blood vessels

Arteries are vessels that carry blood away from the heart.

Veins are vessels that carry blood back towards the heart.

Capillaries are tiny vessels where gases are exchanged with the tissues.